REASON FOR ALLOWANCE

1. 1-10, 12-26 is allowed. Claim 11 has been cancelled.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reason for allowance:

The prior art fails to teach or suggest a hand held device to control motion of a pointer on a display screen, the device having a pressure sensor with pressure sensitive zones that are each associated with a direction of motion of the picture of the pointer on the display screen and an actuator positioned to be manipulated by a digit of the hand holding the shell, and that when manipulated presses against at least one of the pressure sensitive zones causing each pressure sensitive zone to generate a signal having a magnitude that is proportional to an amount of pressure exerted on that zone at a particular point in time, and further causing the pointer to move on the display screen in a any angular direction that is determined both by the direction of motion associated with and also the magnitude of the signal generated by the at least one of the pressure sensitive zones against which the actuator is pressed as claimed with combined limitation of claim 1.

The prior art fails to teach or suggest an actuator usable within a hand held pointing device to control a pointer on a display screen, the actuator having a bottom surface having at least four protrusions spaced apart in a polygonal pattern that are associated with at least four pressure zones on a pressure sensitive film, such that when the actuator swivels about the pivot point, each pressure zone on the pressure sensitive film generates a signal having a magnitude that is proportional to an amount of pressure exerted on that pressure zone by one of the protrusions at a particular point in time causing the pointer to move on the display screen in any angular direction determined by both a direction of motion associated with and also the magnitude of the signal generated by each pressure zone against which the protrusions are pressed as claimed with combined limitation of claim 10.

The prior art fails to teach or suggest a method for controlling motion of a pointer on a display screen through operation of a hand held pointing device, detecting amounts of pressure applied to pressure sensitive zones on a pressure sensor when at least one protrusion of an actuator presses against at least one of the pressure sensitive zones, the pressure sensor and the actuator being contained within the hand held pressure sensitive zones that have signal magnitudes proportional to the amounts of pressure applied to the zones at a particular point in time; determining a direction of motion that is based on both a sensing direction of motion associated with and also on the magnitude of the signal generated by each pressure sensitive zone against which the at least one protrusion is pressed and sending information relating to the direction of motion to a computing device to cause motion of the pointer on the display screen as claimed with combined limitation of claim 16.

3. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
